

Contents

Preface .....	7
I. Inter duo imperia.
The Palmyrenes between East and West (MICHAEL SOMMER) .....	9
Palmyra as a trading hub .....	12
Palmyra's symbolic patchwork .....	14
Palmyra's institutions .....	15
II. Oasis-polis. Tadmur-Palmyra as a Greek city in the Roman world
(or not) in five episodes (TED KAIZER) .....	23
Introduction .....	23
Pre-Roman Palmyra .....	24
Episode 1: the early stages of Palmyra's integration into the Roman world .....	26
Episode 2: the long heyday of Palmyra's glorious civilization .....	29
Episode 3: Palmyra as a Roman colonia .....	31
Episode 4: a King of Kings in charge (but still a Roman colonia ) .....	33
Episode 4a: the immediate aftermath of Zenobia's defeat .....	35
Episode 5: late-antique Palmyra .....	35
Conclusion .....	36
III. Gateway Tadmur. The beginnings
of Palmyra's long-distance trade (MICHAEL SOMMER) .....	37
'The Hellenistic City' .....	38
From Seleucid to Parthian and Roman: shifting patterns of exchange .....	41
Inter duo imperia : Palmyra as a gateway .....	44
IV. Palmyra. Marginal agriculture
in a marginal landscape? (JØRGEN CHRISTIAN MEYER) .....	47
V. Palmyrene merchants and the Red Sea trade (MATTHEW A. COBB) .....	65
Palmyrene merchants in Egypt .....	66
Palmyrenes in southern Arabia and on Socotra .....	70
Palmyrene participation in the Egyptian-Red Sea trade: explanatory factors ..	75
Conclusion .....	82
VI. The rise of the merchant princes? Scale, status, and wealth
in Palmyrene trade (EIVIND HELDAAS SELAND) .....	85
A caravan city? .....	85
Palmyrene trade .....	86

Elite involvement . . . . .	87
Merchants in Palmyra . . . . .	90
The rise of new elites . . . . .	92
VII. On the edge of empire. Elite representation and identity building in Roman Palmyra (ANN-CHRISTINE SANDER) . . . . .	95
Palmyrene caravan inscriptions and elite status . . . . .	96
Sources of power according to the caravan inscriptions . . . . .	97
Imagining Palmyra's elite: camels, horses and warriors . . . . .	103
Conclusion . . . . .	107
VIII. Μείζονα πράγματα. Persians, Romans and Palmyra in Zosimus' historiography (GEORG MÜLLER) . . . . .	109
Zosimus' historiographic technique . . . . .	109
Zosimus' Palmyra . . . . .	111
Palmyra . . . . .	118
The Persians . . . . .	123
The Roman Empire I — nationalities and loyalties . . . . .	124
The Roman Empire II — emperor and charisma . . . . .	125
Summary . . . . .	126
IX. The political powers and Syria. War aims, scenarios and perspectives for a country in civil war (ALEXANDER WILL) . . . . .	129
The stage . . . . .	130
Russia . . . . .	132
Turkey . . . . .	134
Israel . . . . .	137
United States and European Union . . . . .	139
Perspectives . . . . .	139
Contributors . . . . .	141
Bibliography . . . . .	143
List of illustrations . . . . .	161
Index locorum . . . . .	163
General index . . . . .	165